Planning for future irrigation

Golden Gate Cemetery may be dry, but it won't be that way for very long

With lichen . . .

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Post Staff Writer

Those brown stretches of grass surrounding gravemarkers in the northern 40 acres of Golden Gate National Cemetery in San Bruno aren't the result of careless maintenance, according to Director John Metzler.

He explained that the 161-1/2-acre cemetery is replacing its irrigation system and had to turn off the water in part of the cemetery for a month.

"People have been expressing lots of concern about this," Metzler said, recalling that the cemetery was strongly criticized for poor maintenance just three years ago in an article printed in this newspaper.

An informal investigation initiated by the late Congressman Leo J. Ryan resulted in improved groundskeeping.

Metzler said he hopes the new irrigation system, funded with $1 million from the Veterans Administration, will be installed by November.

After the new pipes are laid, he explained that crews will level and seed the lawns.

The new watering system will feature automatically controlled sprinklers that will turn on and off at pre-set times. Metzler said it will be a vast improvement over the old system, which had erratic pressure and incomplete coverage.

Meanwhile, cemetery employees are continuing their five-year program of planting all new lawns and sprucing up gravemarkers.

Three workers are employed full-time to clean lichen off the 92,800 white gravemarkers, one at a time, using high pressure jets of water.

Another three employees cut lawns all day long and eight do nothing but trim the grass close to headstones.

Other employees tend the flowers and other foliage. The cemetery also employs an exterminator to eradicate gophers, which once were a tremendous problem at the cemetery.

All of this care is lavished without a thought of attracting new "business."

Metzler said the cemetery's 9,150 empty plots are all reserved and it hasn't had any new graves available for years.

Jeff, AFT resume negotiations

Stalled contract negotiations between the Jefferson Union High School District and the striking American Federation of Teachers Local 1481 were scheduled to resume at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Grosvenor Hotel in South San Francisco.

After nearly two weeks of no talks, the district and union met in an abortive three-hour session Friday, the district saying it might try again Wednesday. The AFT said Tuesday it had sent a hand-delivered letter to the district at 1 p.m. Monday, inviting its negotiators back to the bargaining table.

The district replied at 3 p.m. that it would meet, but district spokesman Dave Shepherd said the request had come from state Mediation and Conciliation Service mediator Michael West, who has been attempting to get the two parties together in meaningful talks for about two weeks now, with no success.

In the meantime, striking teachers, paraprofessionals, aides and clerical workers observed the ninth working day of the strike with another rally and informational meeting at the Gellert Park clubhouse in Daly City Tuesday and manned picket lines at the district's six schools. The featured speaker at a Monday rally was Raoul Teilhet, AFT state president.

Shepherd reported the 3,632 students, or about 55 percent of the district's total enrollment, attended school Monday, up from 47 percent Friday.

Of the AFT teachers, 86, or 29 percent of the work force, was in class Monday, he said, along with about 200 substitute teachers.

AFT spokesman Tom Fitzpatrick reported different figures, with only 35 percent of the students and 15 percent of the AFT force in school Monday. Fitzpatrick added that a head count by parents in Pacifica Monday had shown only 435 students at Oceana High School.

Fitzpatrick also challenged statements in a flyer issued by the district over the weekend, which advised parents and students that school credit would not be given for time missed in school during the strike.

"Under state law, credit is given by the regular teachers," Fitzpatrick said, adding "All the kids who didn't cross the picket lines last year were given full credit."

Some students have expressed concern that the lost instruction time during the strike may effect their qualifications for entering college.

Some of them, belonging to a Serramonte High School-based group called Save Our Students, joined with the Parents Action Committee to End the Strike in picketing of JUHSD Trustee Jane Powell's home in Daly City Monday evening, a spokeswoman saying Mrs. Powell was selected because "She has been

Officials oppose conversion of Lincoln School

By JOHN CURRY
Post Staff Writer

The Abraham Lincoln School site in Daly City will not be used to build low and moderate income housing if local jurisdictions have anything to do with it, it was brought out forcefully at an informational meeting of county, city and school district officials at the Daly City Civic Center Monday.

County Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald and county Housing and Community Development Director Mark C. Nelson got an earful of what the city and the owner of the now-closed school, the Jefferson Elementary School District, think of the federal Housing and Urban Development agency idea of putting the "affordable" housing at Lincoln, just off John Daly Boulevard and across from the Westlake Shopping Center.

Fitzgerald explained that the county has been under pressure from HUD to find places for affordable housing and that "Are they available is the number one issue."

For this they're not, JESD Trustee Beverly K. Forrester heatedly emphasized, saying as a trustee and as a private citizen she opposed putting any kind of housing at Lincoln.

The other site Fitzgerald asked about was the 20-acre Savage site, near Serramonte High School, once planned by JESD as an intermediate school but now in limbo because of declining enrollment.

Fitzgerald suggested that perhaps half of the Savage site could be sold or leased by the district, with the remaining 10 acres still usable for a school if needed.

JESD Board President Dorothy Adams noted that by law the district had to offer the land containing the closed schools to other public agencies, and should the county follow through with its option on Lincoln and go ahead with the affordable housing, "This is not something we would welcome."

The district closed Lincoln and nearby Olympia School last year "on the premise that it's not likely that that many children would be produced again. But 100 low-income housing units would produce 200 children." The district then would have to find somewhere else to put them, she said.

"We probably would have to reconsider sale of the Olympia site," Mrs. Forrester said.

"We have subsidized housing in

First it's odor woes, then noise complaints

If it isn't odor, it's noise. Either way, the North San Mateo County Sanitary District can't win.

Months of complaints from neighbors about malodorous effluvia from the plant next to Westlake Park once again gave way to gripes about noise at the district Board of Directors meeting Monday afternoon.

That the district can't seem to win was evidenced by its acceptance of newly-constructed noise control facilities in the pure oxygen process tanks at the east end of the plant because the contractor had done the job he had been signed to do, but the hissing and motor noises still fill the night air on occasion.

General Manager Peter Archuleta said he is to visit a nearby home at 10:30 p.m. Thursday to hear for himself what the resident is complaining about.

The noise, mainly intermittent hissing, isn't so noticeable during the daytime with the rumble of traffic, but "It's very annoying at 11 o'clock at night when you're trying to get to sleep," according to Bill Wade, a neighbor and director of the Westlake Subdivisions Improvement Association.

Although the $113,000 project now is finished, Archuleta admitted he had heard noises from the new facility last week, possibly from two centrifuge motors. But, he told the board, finding the exact source of the sound isn't all that easy. "With my ear used to it, I don't know what I would hear at that home Thursday night," he said.

Director William Schumacher reminded that the district has spent $3,000 to $4,000 to go to a different system at night to cut out the hisson the board the longest and she has pull."

The demonstration wasn't completely effective, because Mrs. Powell wasn't home and didn't arrive during the hour the 30 pickets were there, according to Mrs. Kathy Sangimino, a PACES leader and parent of two Oceana students.

Mrs. Sangimino said plans are afoot for a march by parents and students at 3 p.m. Thursday, from Serramonte High School to the district office in the Westlake Shopping Center. "We want to to talk with the superintendent," she said.

Anyone who can't make the walk has been asked to meet the group at the shopping center. "We need students from all over," for the joint PACES-SOS project, Mrs. Sangimino said.

The AFT went on strike Sept. 5 after contract negotiations for the current year broke down. The teachers and other workers originally demanded a 10.2 percent pay increase, and the district in two counter offers has agreed to up to 5 percent, depending on the number of layoffs accompanying the pay hike because of tight funding.

The union claims the district can give pay raises and hire back 18 tenured teachers scheduled for dismissal and has been seeking binding arbitration, saying it was taking the same gamble as the district on the decision. But the district has refused to submit the dispute to binding arbitration, claiming the elected Board of Trustees has the sole authority to determine how district money is spent, not an outside arbitrator.

The union local, representing some 411 employees, includes teachers, substitutes and a Business and Instructional Support Services unit of clerks, office workers, aides and paraprofessionals who voted overwhelmingly to join the local last spring.

The AFT, representing only the teachers last September, struck for 13 days before winning what it considered a good contract.

Much of the contention this year is over what the AFT claims is a district attempt to "gut" that contract of its employee rights and benefits provisions in such areas as working conditions, assignments and grievances.

The district has claimed it is strapped for more money and Superintendent Floyd Gonella has said several times that unless the AFT moderates its position, the strike may be a long one.

Margaret Riggs, center, Jefferson Union High School District acting associate superintendent of administration/operations, was met head-on Friday by striking American Federation of Teachers members as she left a delicatessen at lunchtime to return to her office next door in the Westlake Shopping Center in Daly City. Closest to her is Bill Curran, a teacher at Oceana High School and vice president of the AFT local. The strikers were picketing the district office at the time, demanding that the district agree to new contract negotiations. Miss Riggs quickly ducked through the door at left to her office when some of the pickets began shouting at her.

ing, which he said sounds like air brakes on a bus.

Wade said that measure had cut down the complaints, "But there still is an appreciable number and we think some still are valid. You should do some public relations work with the neighbors because you have a problem. The planning and specifications on this project were inadequate in the first place. Now, you're putting patches on patches.

"It's the same for the odors. Nothing that's done here gives us the confidence that we're getting anything but patches," he said.

At Schumacher's suggestion, the contractor who built the plant originally will be asked to "have a look" around the building for the noise. Director John Ward said the contractor, Jim Perry, now is doing the noise study for the San Francisco International Airport-San Mateo County Joint Land Use Study, and has all the necessary noise monitoring equipment that might be needed.

Archuleta said also the district could, if needed, install a second silencer on the exhaust vent of the oxygen purifier, at a cost of $3,000 to $4,000.

Also of immediate concern to the board was the need for help on development of a new accounting system to keep better track of the district's accounts and grant monies.

Finance Director Monique Carrington said a changeover from a cash basis to an accrual system is needed and asked for an outside consulting firm to develop it. "We just don't have an accounting system that meets state or federal requirements or the needs of the district," she said.

Time is of the essence, because the district's accounting clerk has resigned, effective the end of this week, for health reasons, and that means she will have to do the everyday bookkeeping in addition to trying to keep up on upgrading of the system and doing the grants work, she said.

But Schumacher said he thought $35,000 was high for the work and asked that the district get proposals first from consultants.

Ward, a county supervisor, added that perhaps a small team of people from the county controller and engineering offices could do a preliminary study of the district's needs at a cost saving.

Board Chairman Victor Kyriakis suggested both approaches, and it was agreed that Ward would contact the county departments immediately to see if they could do the work. Formal proposals from consultants and the county report will be before the board at its Oct. 1 meeting.

The board also recieved a progress report Monday on the district's wastewater reclamation project, which eventually will put it in the irrigation water business.

Daly City now," Mrs. Forrester went on, "and other school districts have surplus sites. I don't see why we would want to segregate low-income people here."

The term may be apt.

Daly City Mayor Victor Kyriakis noted that a large number of communications received by the city unanimously oppose the housing plan and some 200 persons at a Westlake Subdivisions Improvement Association meeting last week were 100 percent against any housing, high-priced condominiums or low-income housing.

Kyriakis told the group that "We (the city) can't say we don't want any low or moderate income housing in the city. HUD would suspend all future funding until it investigated. We have to make a good-faith attempt to accommodate them on what they're trying to do."

Mrs. Adams said, "The situation has changed a lot in the past few years. Low and moderate income housing has been established fact because the San Francisco transit system dropped you at the city line and you couldn't get much farther without a long walk. Now, SamTrans is a reasonably-priced means of travel and puts any area of San Mateo County within reasonable access of the low and moderate income people from San Francisco."

She added that, "The (JESD) board at its last meeting made a good-faith offer of the Lincoln site. If the county accepts, the district wouldn't back out. But if it drops the option, the board is willing to go along with it."

Kyriakis said he thought the city would consider leasing Lincoln from the district and sub-letting to other organizations "for use compatible with the site."

Senior citizen use has been mentioned, and perhaps a child care center would fit, but the latter hasn't been discussed, he said.

Daly City Councilman Albert Teglia observed that there is a "resurgence" of kindergarten-age children from local homes and suggested the school district keep the Lincoln site in its ownership in case of a future need for it as a school.

Mrs. Forrester said she resented the district being "involved in your forced commitment to low-income housing" and "We told the feds what they can do, they can shove it, but we still got our federal money. This is your problem. We oppose it."

Teglia replied that "This is a whole community problem. It's all out of one tax pocket. We're serving the same public."

On the Savage site, Fitzgerald asked that the JESD board let Nelson know when it makes a decision. Nelson assured the two trustees that he is looking at school sites in other districts too, and that these two are merely two of a large number being studied.

Mrs. Adams told the group that the school district someday may need the Savage site. Nearby Franklin Delano Roosevelt School, which originally had a capacity of 700 students, is built right across the San Andreas Fault.

"If there is movement (an earthquake), the chances that the state would let us rebuild Roosevelt are practically nil," she said.

The district should keep that option open if it has to close FDR, she said, adding that putting Lincoln and Olympia back into service as replacement capacity for FDR isn't feasible because both are too small.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

A scenario . . .

"Medium long shot of exasperated woman trying on clothing. Nothing seems to satisfy her."

Does this scene seem familiar? Have you tried on last year's favorite suit with the slit up the leg

And it doesn't fit . . . because there's just too much leg?$If that's the case with most of your clothing this season, you know you've gained some weight over the summer.

You say you have been trying to diet, but can't seem to budge that scale. There may be a good reason. You may be snacking just a little too much to lose.

We often rationalize that one little bite or one extra snack won't hurt. It's those "little extras" that add on extra pounds or prevent good weight loss.

Here's a list of various snack items that many people eat daily. Get out your pencils and see if you can guess their calorie counts. The Diet Workshop has counted them for you; the answers are at the end of the column (no peeking!). You'll be surprised at that triple-digit inflation.

a. 10 potato chips
b. 2 oz. peanuts
c. chocolate cupcake
d. 3 oz. martini
e. 12 oz. can of cola drink
f. 1½ oz. pretzels
g. apple pie a la mode
h. 2 oatmeal cookies
i. 12 oz. can of beer
j. sugar doughnut

Now compare what you guessed with the proper numbers. Surprised? Those numbers can really add up. Think back on today and yesterday and last week. How many of these or other "little' snacks did you consume, thinking they really didn't matter? Get yourself a good comprehensive calorie guide.

Put yourself on a well-balanced diet program with nutritious snacks built right in.

For example, if you had substituted a cut-up apple sprinkled with cinnamon for that chocolate cupcake, you would have saved yourself 125 calories! That's the way to see the scale move downward.

Here are a couple of tasty nutritious snacks from The Diet Workshop that anyone, even non-dieters, will enjoy.

Don't miss it! Victorian Days in the Park: September 22-23 in San Mateo's Central Park. Here is San Mateo County's answer to the Walnut Festival and the Jumping Frog Jamboree.

It is a first of its kind event: a sort of gala garden party that recaptures the era that witnessed the establishment of our county and the growth of her cities.

It was the age of John Daly, William D. M. Howard, Good Roads Casey, John Parrott, R. G. Sneath and Miller and Lux with their lovely houses and graceful way of living.

With all the people of San Mateo County as honored guests, Victorian Days in the Park will feature an old-fashioned ice cream social and an historical fashion show. There will be theatrical and musical entertainment and the re-enactment of an historic duel.

One area of the park will be called Memory Lane and feature exhibits of the history of San Mateo County from Daly City to the southernmost boundary.

At another end of the park there will be a Budweiser Beer garden with both beer and wine being sold. There will be picnics on the green and cafes with Victorian food and snacks. During the celebration participants will see a baseball tournament and an old-timers contest.

To add to the enjoyment hundreds of artisans will set up booths where the finest products of the arts and the crafts will be offered at pre-Christmas prices.

Victorian Days in the Park is sponsored by the San Mateo Historical Association as a benefit for its many activities including San Mateo County's widely acclaimed museum. The sweep of last year's Proposition 13 left the Historical Association without funds to support projects that have taken years to develop. So the directors decided to have a party that would be full of fun and raise the necessary funds and at the same time make history live for all the people of San Mateo County and all the guests they care to bring.

Admission to the park and to the exhibits is free while the food, drinks and the various kinds of entertainment will cost a few cents, thereby providing for the continuance of the museum and the programs that benefit many people.

Surely the San Mateo County Historical Association is to be commended for providing a festival that will bring the people of San Mateo County together. Indeed, there are few events that prompt the people of the County to meet and enjoy their common heritage.

San Mateo County needs a sense of pride. It needs to cease being "that little area between San Francisco and San Jose." It is time for the people of Daly City to meet the people of Redwood City and for the citizens of Hillsborough to meet the residents of Brisbane.

There is a need to erase the barrier that separates the coastside from the rest of the County and to make the people from Pacifica aware of their neighbors in East Palo Alto or Atherton.

Victorian Days In the Park is an event that can lead to this kind of an understanding. So load the kids in the car and come to San Mateo Central Park or come by bus or pony express, but come! You owe it to your county and to yourself.

Cypress Hills now is larger

By HAL GEVERTZ

I recently revisited Jack Fleming's-designed Cypress Hills golf course in South San Francisco that rests on the southwestern slopes of the San Bruno Mountain.

When I first played the course in 1975, there were 5,213 yards of playing room. It now has been increased to 6,021 yards, accomplished with the application of three new holes.

They are the 150-yard par three 13th and the 300- and 372-yard par four 14th and 15th.

Also with these many of the former continuous par threes on the front nine including the third, fifth, eighth and ninth were enlarged and relocated into par fours and fives.

The Cypress Hills course rating of 65 has been increased to about 68.5 and I must say the course has certainly taken on added difficulty because of these modifications.

Cypress Hills has always been a stern test of stamina and concentration because of the steep terrain on much of the course.

Restricted fairways, especially on the front nine, are obstructed by screens of pine, cypress and eucalyptus trees with some bold angles to increase one's chances of securing unwanted bogies along the new routes.

I always considered the former predominantly par three outward nine one of the toughest in California and it has increased with its added length.

The remodeled sharp angle right, 390-yard par four uphill third is tough. You have to hit a drive a good 200 yards plus on the left side to pass a fence of cypress trees on the right obscuring the green from sight.

The alternative is either hit the second shot over the trees or waste a shot to get into an open position to reach the green on the third shot.

Three traps hem in the hilltop green that falls away on the right side for added difficulty.

This is followed by the demanding 159-yard sharp downhill one-shotter. There's an overgrown canopy-eucalyptus on the right blocking out the sky and any golf ball that gets in its way. A road squeezes in the left side and three large traps screen a good size level green making the hole difficult to secure.

The 525-yard par five fifth then reverses itself with a sharp angle left, dense trees and a large trap on the left corner of the short-cut landing area.

The second and incoming shots have to avoid out of bounds and trees on the right obscuring the green that angles slightly right behind the coverage. A large scopped-out bunker on the right convincingly guards the slanting raised green.

You do get some respite from the tumbling toils of Cypress Hills with short par fours ranging from 255 to 326 yards on the sixth, 14th and 18th.

The ground is more secure on some of the horizontal fairways on the inward nine and will give one an opportunity to keep the ball safely in play.

But you also will have to contend with unpredictable out-of-bounds roll on their hillsome hard surface terrain with a myriad of inconsistent grass growths.

Many fairways were found to be possessed by "green-devil crab-grass." The weeds are native to the area and hard to eradicate, especially with only four gardeners taking care of a busy public golf course of 400 members and two separate women's clubs.

Fifty-nine uncultivated bunkers, representing deep depressions of difficulty, will require extra physical effort for extracting golf balls and one's self from these dark-sanded pits of gloom.

Some are strategically placed, like the 372-yard par four 15th where the incoming shot is effectively blocked by a cypress tree and a well-endowed bunker cutting in the right sector of the green.

The small and average size greens have changed from a fast tempo when I first played the course and now are heavy and slower.

Contest Rules

1. Select the winner of each game by placing an "X" in the box on the margin side of the team you think will win. If you predict that the game will end in a tie, place an "X" only in the column headed "Ties" between the two teams. If the game ends in a tie, credit will be given only to contestants who predict the tie.
2. Write the total net yards (rushing and passing) that you think the designated team will make in the box provided. This estimate will be used only in case of ties between two or more contestants.
3. Clip and mail the entry blank to:

FOOTBALL CONTEST
San Mateo Times
P.O. Box 5400
San Mateo, Calif. 94402

4. Entries must be postmarked prior to midnight Thursday of this week or delivered to The Times prior to 5:30 p.m. Thursday of this week. The Times is not responsible for entries lost, delayed or destroyed or which fail to reach The Times by 9:30 a.m. on Saturday.
5. A $25 cash prize will be awarded to the best entry submitted each week. An additional $25 will be awarded if the best entry is submitted by a Times subscriber or the entrant indicates immediate home delivery of The Times is wanted. In the event a winner cannot be determined by use of a tie-breaker, the prize money will be divided equally among the eligible contestants who tied for the week's best entry. Check the appropriate box at the bottom of the entry form to become eligible for the additional $25.
6. A $100 cash prize will be awarded to a Times subscriber, or entrant, who indicates immediate home delivery of The Times is wanted, who selects all 15 games correctly. In the event two or more entrants select all 15 games correctly, the tie-breaker will not be used. Instead, the $100 cash prize will be divided among all of the eligible entrants who selected all 15 games correctly. Check the appropriate box at the bottom of the entry form to become eligible for the $100 cash prize.
7. Cash prizes will be payable only to the contestant identified on the entry blank. Winning contestants will be required to show identification.
8. Number of entries from one household is limited to three (3) including only one (1) facsimile of the official entry blank permitted per household. Submission of more than three entries or one facsimile will render all facsimiles submitted by that contestant void.

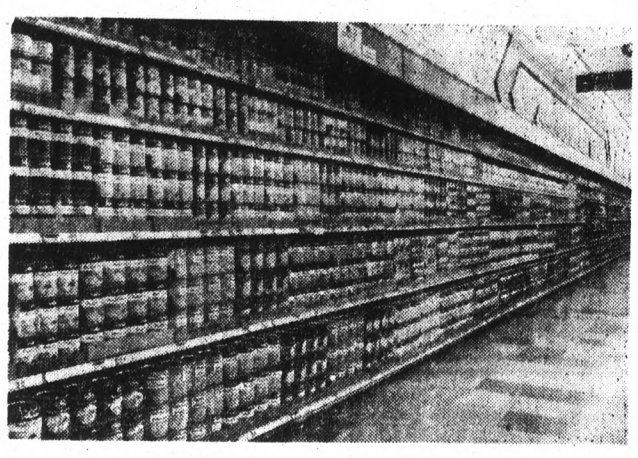
there's nothing special about "specials"...

HOW SAVINGS CAN DISAPPEAR AT THE CHECKSTAND! To entice you in, some supermarkets offer so-called "specials" on a few items, good for a few days only. Sometimes these "specials" are even below cost. But no business can survive by losing money. Those losses are usually made up with higher prices on other unadvertised items. So the money you "save" on "specials" often disappears at the checkstand. Lucky knows that to get a lower total on your weekly food bill you need lower prices on every item on your shopping list. And not just some days of the week, but every day of the week. So whenever you shop at Lucky, you'll find prices on most items are lower by a few cents. Why save a little, when you can save a lot! A lower total at the checkstand is what Lucky's discount pricing is all about!



DISCOUNT PRICES EVERY DAY KEEP YOUR FOOD COSTS DOWN! Your family may be growing and the dollar may be shrinking, but Lucky's low discount prices every day of the week can help keep your food costs down! Lucky maintains a lower profit margin and spends less on advertising than other stores ... and passes the savings on to you with lower prices. By keeping their food costs down, Lucky keeps your food costs down. So whatever day of the week you shop at Lucky, you'll find prices on most items lower by a few cents—including non-foods like books & magazines and health & beauty aids. The savings on each item may not seem like a lot ... until you add them all up at the checkstand. That's where you'll see the difference. A lower total on your weekly food bill is what discount pricing is all about—and Lucky Has It!

Daly City finishes operating budget study

Public hearings on Daly City's municipal budget began Wednesday night, with two interesting projects coming to light and several departmental budgets for the current fiscal year settled, but many more to come.

The 1979-80 budget calls for $11,885,180 in expenditures, down from the $12,420,766 of 1978-79 because of a $316,500 drop in debt service costs, a $300,000 saving through self-insurance and lesser cuts in a few departments.

Most department budgets show inflation-related increases, however, Finance Director C. Robert Green told the council.

Anticipated revenues for this year have been put at $11,779,320, but at this point do not include any state assistance, of which the city received $640,000 last year.

Most other anticipated revenue estimates are up.

The major ones, property tax and sales tax, are estimated to rise to $3,300,000 from $2,458,000 and to $3,350,000 from $3,150,000, respectively, Green's figures showed.

This was the council's first look at specific department budgets.

After hearing from City Clerk Betty Mazza that her department budget had been prepared in March, Councilman James Tucker asked, "How come we've seen no budgets until tonight?"

Green replied that City Manager David Rowe had received the budgets in May, at the time state legislation on post-Proposition 13 bail-out funds was in the hopper in Sacramento, and that "he had held off because of the revenue picture."

Rowe is on vacation until mid-September.

Mayor Victor Kyriakis directed the budget be submitted to the council earlier next year, so it can study it prior to public hearings.

The council will have another budget study session at 7 p.m. next Wednesday at the Civic Center, and others after that if it thinks they are necessary before final adoption.

Budgets of the city clerk, treasurer, city attorney, civil defense, fire department, community promotion, library, Community Service Center and the History, Arts and Science Commission were reviewed, and water operations put over.

The largest of them, that of the Fire Department, would be up from $1,748,803 to $1,779,800, due to normal pay increases under a two-year contract firemen now have with the city, and $4,620 in education and training, over double last year's cost.

Fire Chief Keith Schrock told the council his department is operating "at a bare minimum" of personnel now but has enough "to do an adequate job."

Councilman William Schumacher commented, "We know we're going to need more firemen, but how do we do it? One a year?"

Schrock said that to add one man per shift would require hiring four or five, if vacations are taken into account.

The community promotion budget provoked a question from Tucker that kept popping up throughout portions of the hearing - how to restore the annual Miss Daly City Pageant.

Tucker noted that Daly City "was conspicuous by our absence (in the Dream Girl judging) at the fair this year," since the Chamber of Commerce isn't handling the pageant anymore.

The chamber started the Daly City pageant in 1954, but dropped it this year because of a lack of funds.

Schumacher suggested a matching fund with the chamber, but Councilmen Tony Giammona and Albert Teglia opposed that, Teglia asking that the chamber "get off their collective duffs" to get the pageant going again.

Kyriakis said he wasn't sure the chamber wouldn't resume its sponsorship next year, something the city should check.

City Librarian Samuel Chandler got the question during his presentation of the library budget, but ducked out of agreeing to promote it in his budget along with the wide variety of cultural and artistic functions he outlined for the council for the $447,460 he asked.

But going on to the History, Arts and Science Commission, of which he is coordinator, Chandler was more receptive to Tucker's suggestion that $1,500 be added to its budget for the pageant. Green is to add the money to that budget for final consideration.

The HAS budget of $28,000 is a large jump from the $2,500 of 1978-79, but Chandler explained that this would include $14,000 for salaries for the first time, half of it for a coordinator of performing and visual arts and $10,000 for special projects.

In any case, most of the budget is contingent on grants and a funding application to the San Mateo Foundation. If these don't come through, the HAS budget would be cut to around $6,000, Chandler said.

The special project would include at least the beginning of a major historical project, compiling of all the available materials into one comprehensive work, including tape-recorded recollections of old-timers.

Ed Kirchhubel, who would collaborate, told the council he knows more about Daly City's long and rich history than anyone now, and that getting everything from all sources would be a long job.

World's endangered species

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

The carcass of the blue whale beached on the San Mateo County coast brought out the usual curiosity seekers as well as the dedicated scientists determined to learn something of value by studying the great blue's remains plus a number of "in-betweeners" drawn to view the great blue by something they couldn't quite define.

Nonchalance and wonder stood side by side.

"It's nothing more than a dead animal, a little bigger than most, but no different," said some, while others said nothing, only peering searchingly as if seeking from the surf tossed remnant of the great beast an answer to the eternal enigma of existence.

That blue whale is listed among the world's endangered species did add something to the aura of transient mortality that filled the air along with the ripening smell of decay.

Most of us have heard about the furbish lousewort and the snail darter. In fact, a great many of us have laughed openly at the publicity afforded the two small creatures — one plant, the other animal — by the efforts of ecologists and environmentalists interested in species preservation.

Locally, most of us know about the San Francisco garter snake and the pale gossamer winged butterfly that finds it food only on San Bruno Mountain.

But how many of us have seen since childhood the skinny, striped reptile beside a natural pond or watched the bouyant bounce of the blue?

A beached dead whale may be a poor substitute for the sight of a living one.

But if such a sight is the only opportunity afforded, then it may be wise to join the crowd as many who flocked along the coast highway would agree.

Picture taking was quite a pastime whale-side.

Photo seekers, endeavoring to capture the moment, carried a wide range of equipment from simple pocket instamatics to sophisticated cameras with telescopic lenses set on tripods.

Professionals, real and would-be, were easy to spot with their gear slung in camera bags, camera straps a-bulge with film cans, as they angled for the "best" shots.

They climbed the cliffs, crumbling the edges, trampling the fragile seaside ecosystem that marks the continental brink. I suppose the pictures going out, crossing the nation electronically by wire service and TV links could make it all worthwhile.

If, with their thought-provoking power, each photo were able to awaken one more person's interest in the idea of endangered species, man included, then all the scrambling, trampling and scarring along the coast earlier this month may have served a useful purpose.

It has been said that the San Francisco Bay Area is the heart of worldwide environmentalism. There are probably more people interested in an ecologically sound worldview within a rough radius of 150 miles than in a comparable population area elsewhere.

Recognizing this as fact, San Francisco Mayor Diane Feinstein has declared Sunday, Sept. 23 as "All Species Day."

In her proclamation, Mayor Feinstein requests that "all those citizens who wish to express their support and commitment to maintaining the great variety of creatures on the earth, participate in the All Species Day Parade."

The parade begins at 11 a.m. at Embaracadero Center at the foot of Market Street and proceeds leisurely to Civic Center for an afternoon of music, dance and commemorative speeches.

Participants are urged to come masked or dressed as animals other than human, especially endangered ones.

"Children, especially, are invited to join in, hopefully in costumes of their own making based on their own personal research," says a spokesperson for the San Francisco Ecology Center, sponsor of the second annual event, planned to take place on the Autumn Equinox. Call the center at 391-6307 for details.

Undoubtedly photographers will be all along the parade route as well as at its beginning and end.

The professionals may end up gloating over their fantastic results and the fat checks they'll pick up from print or electronic media. The amateurs may be less than happy unless all they want is a quick shot for the family album.

Increasingly, amateur photographers approach their hobby seriously. Rich rewards, financial as well as ego satisfying, await those who enter a host of photo contests. Many amateurs strive for professional results, hoping to enter the decidedly lucrative world of the free lance photographer.

More important than skill or equipment, though, to an aspiring photographer is a good visualizing eye.

Using an inexpensive fixed focus camera someone who can actually "see" desired results can take pictures that elude another amateur with even the most sophisticated and complicated equipment.

Given the "eye", nothing limits the avid amateur except his own time and effort. Helps are all along the way. Personnel in photo shops are often accomplished photographers themselves and able to give reliable advice.

Classes—with subs—back at Serramonte

By ROBIN MOELLER
Commissioner of Publicity
Serramonte High School

Students were registered into their classes Sept. 7. It had earlier been stated that arena scheduling could not go on without the teachers. However, along with a few substitutes, the student aides carried out registration after the situation was reconsidered.

School was closed Monday, Sept. 10, in observance of the Admission Day holiday.

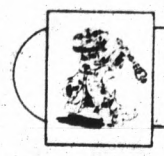
On Tuesday, Sept. 11, between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. those students who weren't registered on Friday made out their class schedules.

For those who weren't registrating, classes were run by substitute teachers starting at 8 a.m. and continuing throughout the day, as a full day schedule was established.

Students were told they would receive credit for all classes they attend during the duration of the strike.

The strike, in the view of many, appeared as if it was lingering on and negotiations were at a standstill.

For this reason a group



The Regent

of students started up an organization — titling themselves the SOS (Save Our Students) Party.

This organization believes the students are being neglected for the second consecutive year. They say they are neither on the side of the teachers or the board but are a separate party of their own. They say they only wish the strike be dissolved quickly and efficiently.

The Save Our Students organization thinks many of the substitute teachers are inadequate and teaching doesn't really go on during a strike. They believe the students are stuck in the middle of things and are being hurt in the process.

At the board meeting Tuesday night at Oceana High School, the SOS proposed to go with signs and protests. They also planned to get new recruits for their organization.

For more information on Save Our Students, get in contact with Gina or Genny Hom.

At Serramonte, football practice goes on as usual, despite the strike. The coaches have decided to continue coaching their team.

During the board meeting at Oceana High School, a lot of Serramonte parents and students were able to express their views on the strike. Serramonte was a well represented high school, having many participants and speakers.

For SOS, four Serramonte students spoke on their issues: Genny Hom, Gina Hom, Tom Chandler and Don Franks.

On the morning of Sept. 12, members of the Save Our Students arose bright and early — at 7 o'clock to be exact — to set up a picket of their own. Before long, however, authorities told them they had no right to be on school grounds, picketing. They said their parents didn't send them to school to picket and that they would have to leave.

This didn't stop SOS, though, they just moved onto the sidewalk next to the teachers picket. Later they decided to move a little further uphill, away from the teachers so they would not be confused with the latter. The Save Our Students organization insisted they were not for the teachers or the board and wanted to confirm that fact.

The SOS group was very vocal — chanting their views openly. The group broke up around 11 a.m. when many of their members decided to take off to the beach.

Many Serramonte students left before school was officially out on Sept. 12, and for many classes no pupils showed up.

In others there were only a few which made teaching useless. Many students said they weren't planning on coming to school, at least for the rest of the week.

In the fall of last year, various sports at Serramonte were said to be discontinued this year, including tennis, fresh-soph sports, C and D basketball, etc.

There has been talk, however, of continuing at least some of the sports programs this year. If they don't, there will probably be a lot of protests.

A leadership conference was scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 15, in Berkeley. This conference is designed for all Junior State members.

Junior State is an organization designed to demonstrate to students how politics and government work. It is a non-profit, non-partisian, student run organization.

The Junior State is divided into three levels — the chapter, the region and the state.

Protect against diseases

By DR. DAVID R. BARNETT

NOTE: In this week's column Dr. Barnett discusses immunization as a protection against pet diseases.

One of the greatest advances in helping animals live longer and more comfortable lives is the highly effective immunizations against dreaded animal diseases.

Many innoculations now are given as a multiple injection to prevent several disease threats at one time.

Most veterinarians recommend early immunization of puppies and kittens and then a series of boosters.

Typical recommendations may include immunization of dogs against distemper, hepatitis, leptospirirosis, parainfluenza and rabies.

For cats, typical immunizations are given against feline distemper, rhinotracheitis, claici virus and rabies.

Veterinarians are aware of local disease problems and will tailor specific immunization recommendations and programs for their area.

Panleukopenia, or feline distemper, produces flu-like symptoms of vomiting, inactivity, initial high temperature, refusal to eat and diarrhea.

Cats can be immunized against upper respiratory viruses which produce very severe cold-like symptoms of sneezing, coughing and watery eyes.

A loss of appetite and sensitivity to light may result from complications of the disease.

One of the most dreaded diseases is canine distemper, which is widespread and very contagious. It has only been in recent years that effective vaccines have been made available.

Years ago distemper was one of the leading causes of death in dogs. The disease is characterized by severe "cold" or severe flu-like symptoms often accompanied by diarrhea in the early stages.

The latter phases of the disease may cause twitching, chomping fits and convulsions as a result of damage to the nervous system.

Dogs are usually immunized for canine infectious hepatitis, a virus infection which affects the liver.

Lack of appetitie vomiting and high temperature are frequent symptoms. Both dogs and cats should be immunized against rabies.

Backup sparks Burlingame to a big win

By TIM MENICUTCH

Burlingame High football coach Bob Booker may have been making snap judgments about his team's future after just one play in the Panthers' non-league opener Friday afternoon against visiting Westmoor.

After all, Booker's starting quarterback Matt Hesselgren was downed and in agony after Burlingame's first play from scrimmage.

Hesselgren left the field with a slightly dislocated finger and a cut serious enough for seven stitches after catching his throwing hand on a Westmoor defender's helmet.

That's when the doubts may have started forming in Booker's head. He was left with starting fullback (but third-string quarterback) Steve Chase in charge of the offense.

Chase erased any doubts quickly. On Burlingame's second offensive series, Chase connected with split end Mark Alioto for a 76-yard touchdown and went on to lead the Panthers to a 34-13 rout of the Rams.

"To be able to take a loss like Hesselgren and still play as well as we did, I'm impressed," said Booker. "We haven't worked with Chase at quarterback at all in practice."

Hesselgren was back from the hospital and in his linebacker spot by the time the second half was under way. He should be able to resume his quarterback duties in a week or two. Booker was visibly relieved, knowing his starting quarterback was not seriously injured and laughed, "Chase is a better fullback, anyway."

But Chase was not the only reason for Burlingame's runaway victory. The Panther defense recovered four Westmoor fumbles, intercepted two passes and blocked a punt to keep the offense in good scoring position all afternoon.

Burlingame could manage just one score, Chase's bomb to Alioto, in the first period. But midway through the second quarter Greg Barton blocked a punt, and Burlingame had possession on the Westmoor 11-yard line. Halfback Dan Jackson wasted no time making it 12-0 with a touchdown scamper around the right side on Burlingame's first play.

The Panther defense, and especially Barton, continued to make the big plays. Just before halftime Barton fell on a Westmoor fumble and Burlingame had the ball on the Westmoor 23. But Burlingame missed its third field goal attempt of the half and the Panthers had to settle for a 12-0 halftime lead.

It didn't take long for Burlingame to make amends for its missed scoring opportunities. After a booming 57-yard kick by Panther Sui Ramirez, Mike Chetner nailed the ball returner, and Andy Yoximer scooped up a fumble and raced 18 yards for a touchdown.

On Westmoor's next possession, Burlingame's defense went to work again. Chase intercepted a pass and the Panthers had the ball on the Ram 36. Fullback Jeff Fraser romped 28 yards on the first play from scrimmage and halfback Dan Jackson finished the mini-drive off with a seven-yard scoring run.

Before Westmoor could blink, Burlingame had the ball again on another Barton fumble recovery. Burlingame moved the ball 43 yards, mostly on the fancy running of Jackson, and settled for a 26-yard field goal by Ramirez.

Four minutes later, Burlingame capitalized on another Westmoor fumble. After a sack by Dave Falf, Suku Etu grabbed the fumble and ran six yards for the score to give Burlingame a 34-0 lead.

Mustangs whip TN

Cap's 'Italian Trio' shines

By MIKE FICHER

A new act made its premiere in the County Friday. And if its first performance is indicative of future shows, it could be the hit of the season.

The group of talented players calls itself the Italian Trio. But you will not find it in any local theater or concert hall.

Rather Jeff and Mike Monteroso and John Sbragia can be found performing in the Capuchino High football backfield, doing a pass-and-run routine through opposing defenses.

The trio earned rave reviews for its smashing opening performance in Cap's 39-16 non-league victory over visiting Terra Nova Friday.

Sbragia rushed for three touchdowns, Mike Monteroso delivered several key runs and blocks, and Jeff Monteroso, living up to star billing, threw one touchdown pass and choreographed six scoring drives to lead the Mustangs to their first pre-season win in two years.

Monteroso got the idea for the group's name from ex-Stanford University middle linebacker Gordy Ceresino.

"My brother and I are really good Stanford fans. He likes Darrin Nelson and Gordy Ceresino. Gordy used to have a big one, a super-huge Italian flag on the back of his helmet," the Cap quarterback said.

"We were gonna do it last year with 10 of us, but it never went through. This year there are four of us, one is hurt — we're all Italians — so I got the flags and we stuck them on our helmets and ever since we've called ourselves the Italian Trio."

Monteroso was not willing to let the group take the major credit for the Cap's win, giving praise to his supporting cast.

"We have probably the tallest offensive ends around. Both guys are 6-6," Monteroso said of wide receivers Jay Slotnick and Marty Simenc. "For the first while we tried to put the ball and let them clear it. They were giving us the inside quickies, though, so we took advantage of that."

Monteroso enjoyed a fine passing day. He completed six of 10 passes for 126 yards and one touchdown, freezing the Tigers with quick inside passes.

"I have confidence in our line. They're really mature. They were really giving me the time," Monteroso said. "The patterns the receivers ran — they have to be complimented on. They ran precise patterns."

Cap was able to also stick to its game plan, which may have been its finest precise pattern, according to Coach Rich Mazzoncini.

"We had our game plan, and I don't think we changed more than maybe one play," he said. "Everything we thought we could do we did pretty well."

The Mustangs, though, had a little help from the Tigers. Two fumbled snaps on punt attempts, another lost fumble and an interception presented Cap with good field position all afternoon.

Monteroso noted that the first Cap touchdown drive after the opening kickoff may have helped set the tone for the contest, if not the season.

"The first drive really got the guys into it. We didn't do so good against Serramonte at last Saturday's scrimmage. They really felt good after the first score. Everybody is just starting to blend together," said Mazzoncini.

Big Vikings stop El Camino cold

By EMMETT FARRELL

Mills High's Greg Jones was pleased.

"Our size is going to take us a long way this season," said the 6-4, 220-pound Jones, a two-way starter at tackle for the Vikings.

"Our offensive backfield has to work on being more smooth. But I thought our defensive backfield played a fine game overall. We're looking forward to getting another shot at Hillsdale (one of only two teams that beat Mills in Mid-Peninsula League play last year, Aragon being the other). Overall, I think we did fine, and we're going to be looking good."

Jones' comments came in the wake of Mills' 28-13 victory over host El Camino Friday night at Clifford Field in the non-league season opener for both teams.

The Vikings looked far from awesome — they completed only four passes and were penalized heavily — but they won primarily because they did what their size may enable them to do often this year. They controlled the line of scrimmage.

"Yeah, I thought our size really helped make the difference tonight," said Viking Coach Gary Frohlich. "We were able to take away their running game early. On offense, though, we weren't able to go to the outside very well."

El Camino had trouble sustaining any offensive drives. The Colts' first touchdown, set up when Mills' punter fumbled a snap, ended a 35-yard march, and Camino's second score — which came with only 1:59 remaining — capped a 27-yard drive set up by a Viking fumble.

Mills took Camino's opening kickoff and drove 72 yards in nine plays, with junior fullback Mike Ryan capping the march on a one-yard plunge. The Vikings ate up nearly six minutes on that relentless drive, highlighted by halfback John Venturino's 30-yard run. But that march was hardly a prelude of things to come; only one other scoring drive covered more than 35 yards.

Viking linemen Jones, Jim McManus (6-1, 205) and Joe De Cossio (6-3, 215) all played well as El Camino ran for only minus-5 yards on 24 carries.

Whenever the Colts tried to pass, the combination of Mills' heavy rush and the wind almost invariably stopped them. One exception developed midway through the second quarter when Colt quarterback Eric Gaffney threw a nice cross-field toss to Bill Aguero, who made the catch near the right sideline and outran Mills' secondary for a 32-yard touchdown, tying the score at 6-6.

But Mills took the lead for good when quarterback Scott Stoehr found junior halfback Scott Kenison over the middle for an 18-yard scoring pass on the Vikings' next possession. Stoehr then scored on the two-point conversion run for a 14-6 Mills advantage.

Practice makes perfect

Regents rip 'Cats

By MELISSA SCHUMANN

Practice pays, and quarterback Robert Williams and receiver Joe Nobles really made the game look easy as they led Serramonte High to a 32-6 victory over host San Mateo in the non-league football opener for both teams Friday.

Williams kept the ball in the air throughout the game, and Nobles caught three of the five passes that were parlayed into touchdowns in a great offensive game for last year's North Peninsula League champions.

Serramonte scored all five touchdowns in the first half. San Mateo finally got on the board in the fourth quarter when Adam Haysbert broke free for a 15-yard touchdown run.

Nobles was an all-NPL receiver last year, and could be one of the most valuable players in the league again this season.

"Robert Williams and I ran through several criss-cross patterns in practice, and they really worked today," Nobles said.

"Williams has a good arm, and I knew just where to be to make some good plays."

Nobles also made a mid-air, one-handed catch for 20 yards in the second quarter which put the Regents five away from another touchdown, which Daryl Williams ran in for.

Regent coach Ken Cook was happy with both his offensive and defensive lines.

"Robert Williams came in at midseason, last year and only made five plays," Cook said. "We're pleased with the way he played today.

"The offensive line did an excellent job protecting him, and he had plenty of time to make some good passes.

"I'm proud of our defensive line this year also. They aren't really big, but they're enthusiatic and like to hit. They did an excellent job today.

"We've still got weaknesses," Cook said. "We only played half of a good football game today. If some of those passes had been missed, it could have been a different game.

"Right now, we need to work more on our backup. If any of our key players were hurt, we'd be in bad shape. We need to get everybody in better shape."

Peabody's captures vets' league title

Peabody's completed an undefeated season by downing the Federales to run their record to 14-0.

Gilio Cosentino's pitching and Alaska's bat led Peabody's attack throughout this most successful season.

The big surprise in the Veterans league was the comback of the O.L.M. Men's Club team. They won only one game in the first half of the league but close out the campaign with four straight wins.

Noel Merten's excellent pitching and the hitting of Walt Henry and Steve Hughes were the highlight of the O.L.M.'s rejuvenation.

How the Twi-Light League was formed

Le Pacini

When I was young and hasty I played a lot of organized baseball.

From the time I was 12 until about the age of 23, I played just about every type and at every level of ball it was possible for an amateur to play: sandlot, CYO, junior high, high school, American Legion, semi-pro.

I missed out on two experiences that I now regret having missed.

I opted against college ball when I almost flunked out of my freshman year (I held participation to Sundays), and I passed up a fling at pro ball when the Yankees wanted to sign me to a class C contract.

But I was already enrolled in college, and deep down I knew that no left-handed batting first baseman who slapped singles to left field was going to beat out Moose Skowron and Joe Collins. I played on every diamond then extant in San Francisco, including Seals Stadium in the old Stadium League.

But the most fun I ever had playing ball was in the Twi-Light League at Portola Playground in the late 1940s and early 1950s.

Unless you were one of the participants, you could never have heard of the Twi-Light League because it was strictly a neighborhood creation with no official status.

It started one warm summer evening after dinner when my father, Louie, and I walked across the street to the park after dinner with a couple of the kids from the block to play a little catch with a hardball.

There were several other fathers and sons there, and after a while somebody got the idea that there were enough of us to play a game, so we went to Lefty, the director, checked out the bases and a softball and bat, chose up sides and played until dark.

We returned the next night and the same cast of characters were there, so we had another go at it. After a few innings we began to pick up some spectators — other kids and fathers and Charlie, the man who owned the corner grocery store. They all said it looked like fun, and we told them to show ep the next night and we'd include them when we chose up sides.

It didn't take long for word to get around. Soon, people from all over the neighborhood were hustling to the park to get there early enough to be chosen (Even if they weren't picked immediately, everybody eventually got into the game, because there were always enough hen-pecked husbands and book-worm kids and sore-legged old guys who had to be replaced before the game was over).

Soon, we were getting not only fathers and sons, but brothers and uncles and cousins and brothers-in-law, and we were picking up spectators by way of mothers, grandmothers, aunts, wives and girl friends.

The game got big enough and competitive enough so that we eventually had to have umpires. They generally were poor athletes who enjoyed being authoritarian figures more than they liked to play.

Our players evolved into a mix of three components: The Young Guys, the Older Guys (guys in their late teens and 20's who were now out in the working world) and the Old Guys (fathers, uncles, etc.)

Our abilities varied. There were the high school and semi-pro players, even a few older guys who had played a little pro ball. But there were also kids who had never been quite good enough to make organized teams, and older guys and fathers who, truthfully, were pretty bad. But everybody played.

Backgrounds were diverse. There were, of course, the students, but there also were all the guys who worked at the brewery, like Bo-Bo and Greek and Duke and Boots and Hook (whatever happened to all those wonderful nicknames?), and local merchants such as Charlie, and my father, the music store owner; Dino, who taught accordian in the store, Earl the cleaner, Sammy the pharmacist, Richie the hardware man, Bill, who owned the sports supply and clothing store, Frank the barber, and Wabbit, who worked at the Emporium. Then there was Joe, who laid terrazzo tile, and Eddie, who read PG&E meters, and Joe the gardener and Walt the truck driver and Virg, who delivered pies and cupcakes, and Jack the bartender, and even Al Fioresi, the former PCL umpire who was then scouting for the Seals.

There were no formal, regular teams, but the teams were usually pretty stable because, naturally, when we chose sides we generally picked the players we liked.

Thus, the rivalry between the two teams, which somehow evolved into the sobriquets, "Sinners" and "Valiants," got hectic.

Cheering sections eventually formed and, let's be honest, it wasn't unusual for four bits to pass hands after a game (The kids who didn't have the 50-cents were "picked up" by the old guys and the older guys, so that everybody could afford to play.)

But there were what would nowadays be called "Theme Nights," the most popular of which was fathers against sons.

The highlight of the Twi-Light League era for the teens was the time we suckered the old guys (many of whom, like my father, were only in their middle and late 30's) into a buck a man fast-pitch game. They quickly accepted, feeling they had an edge because Fioresi had pitched fast-pitch ball in his time.

But we introduced into the game a new hardball-sized softball and designated Dickie Kalar, a senior who had had a good high school season as a southpaw pitcher for Commerce, as pitcher. Naturally, he pitched overhand, and the old guys, whose reflexes hadn't gone against that type of baseball in years, were all fanning.

A funny thing happened about half-way through the rout, however. In those days, fathers had the last word, and all the prerogatives. After my father struck out for the third straight time, he uttered his now immortal declaration, "That's enough of this s---!!" The other fathers agreed and the game was suspended, and then continued as slow pitch with the traditional softball, the old guys rallied, and we lost our dollars.

Arnaud's Basque cooking at Les Jon's

Something new and exciting has come to Burlingame at the LES JON'S restaurant/cocktail lounge located next to Hyatt Cinema. It's ARNAUD'S Basque family-style dinners, along with a new luncheon menu. Chef Arnaud brings to the mid-Peninsula a big following of loyal fans who have enjoyed his Basque cooking at the old Hotel La France on Broadway in San Francisco's North Beach and most recently at Val's in Daly City. "My complete family-style Basque dinners will include two meat entrees, just like in the good old days," said Arnaud ... The refreshing drive over to the coastside is pleasant enough anytime, but on these hot autumn days it's a special delight. Particularly when the specialties at NICK'S, THE MOONRAKER and CAPTAIN CHARLES await your choice at beautiful Rockaway Beach, Pacifica ... When choosing the sophisticated yet informally elegant LA POTINIERE French restaurant in downtown San Mateo for lunch or dinner, you will enjoy one of the most exquisite dining experiences. Owner/host/chef ROGER NICOLAS personally oversees every phase of the menu and wine cellar ... JOHN CHIANG has built up a big business at his GONG'S Chinese restaurant in South San Francisco by specializing in home delivery and take-out service of Cantonese and Mandarin food.

Scotty Campbell's has pianobar whiz

ALAN DOTE, pianobar entertainer at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City, has 20 years experience in the music business. In the movie "Disco Fever," which is the story of Fabian's life, four of the songs were written and produced by Dote. He is also the recipient of 15 gold records ... A "best bet" for luncheon or post-theater dining at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's glittering Geary Street "Theater Row," is "England's Great Pub Sandwich." It's fried oysters and Canadian-style bacon, served on a toasted English muffin with French mustard, Hollandaise sauce, shoestring potatoes and sweet pickles ... Prominent San Francisco Realtor George Field, along with his wife, Julia, and sons Tom and Robert, hosted a large dinner party amid the flowers, trees and fountains at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco preceding an evening of operatic entertainment by MARIO PIERONI'S talented singers in the adjoining Bocce Opera Room ... A separate dining area with a huge fieldstone fireplace and profusion of indoor plants provides a delightful setting for group luncheons and dinners, business banquets, wedding parties, receptions and social gatherings at ALFREDO'S restaurant.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Many of us decided to beat the high price of food by growing our own vegetables. Which is just great except for one little fact: Our garden and our neighbors' gardens produced the same vegetables at the same time.

What to do with all that zucchini and lettuce?

Thanks to a good friend, I have a couple of recipes to share with any other gardeners who want another and yet another way to serve zucchini.

ZUCCHINI SOUP

2 (8-oz.) cans of consomme
2 cans water
½ pound cooked ham or bacon
½ tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
3 pounds zucchini, cut in large pieces
3 cloves garlic
1 medium onion, chopped

Place the two cans of consomme, two cans water, half pound cooked ham or bacon (I fried and drained the bacon and then added it to the soup), half tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, three pounds zucchini, three cloves garlic and one medium onion, chopped in a large Dutch oven.

Bring to a boil and simmer for one hour.

Then place, by cupfulls, in blender and blend until thick. (This soup resembles split pea soup in texture.)

Makes 2 quarts.

New energy alternative drive going

A Menlo Park man's blueprint for solving the nation's energy problems is gaining momentum as he travels the state drumming up support for his one-man campaign.

Paul Randolph, a former stockbroker who has taken up his energy campaign fulltime, is looking toward helium-cooled nuclear power plants situated on sea barges providing hydrogen and electrical power to replace the diminishing supply of natural gas. The plants would substitute for conventional fuels in a variety of ways.

Randolph, who said he has been working on this plan for 10 years, is trying to raise $1 million to promote his energy concept. He is seeking 312,000 signatures to qualify an initiative on the state ballot in the November 1980 election.

"They (energy experts) tell me if I can win this in California... I can win it worldwide," Randolph said.

Randolph's proposed initiative would amend the state constitution by repealing the laws adopted by the state Legislature in 1976 that have restricted nuclear power development in California.

Randolph acknowledges that even if his petition campaign succeeds in qualifying for the ballot, the biggest battle — largely a political one — lies ahead in the standoff with nuclear opponents.

The initiative would also amend the state Coastal Act, allowing construction of nuclear plant barges.

Randolph, a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles, has selected a marina at Monterey Bay as the first site for the complex of 21 barge nuclear power plants, along with land facilities for processing reactor fuel.

Typically, all of the eventual installations would be located on the coast. The most unusual aspect is that the power plants would break down sea water into its component parts and use hydrogen as the fuel source.

Randolph claimed that the "hardware" for the kind of system he is talking about already exists. All that remains, he said, is to promote the idea and convince the public of its merits.

"The plants can be built," he stated.

Admittedly, it is an expensive technology at the present time. A single barge would cost about $2 billion and Randolph envisions 20 barges, at a cost of $40 billion, at each of eight marinas.

Initially, however, he would opt for three marinas, financed through the sale of serial construction bonds abroad.

Selling them abroad, he contended, would attract foreign investment to the United States, helping to eliminate a balance of payments problem. He believes the job should be done by private industry because private industry could do it at less cost.

Randolph's Committee for the Energy Initiative is located at 1149 Chestnut St., Menlo Park.
